

Changing the Resolution on the New Laptop

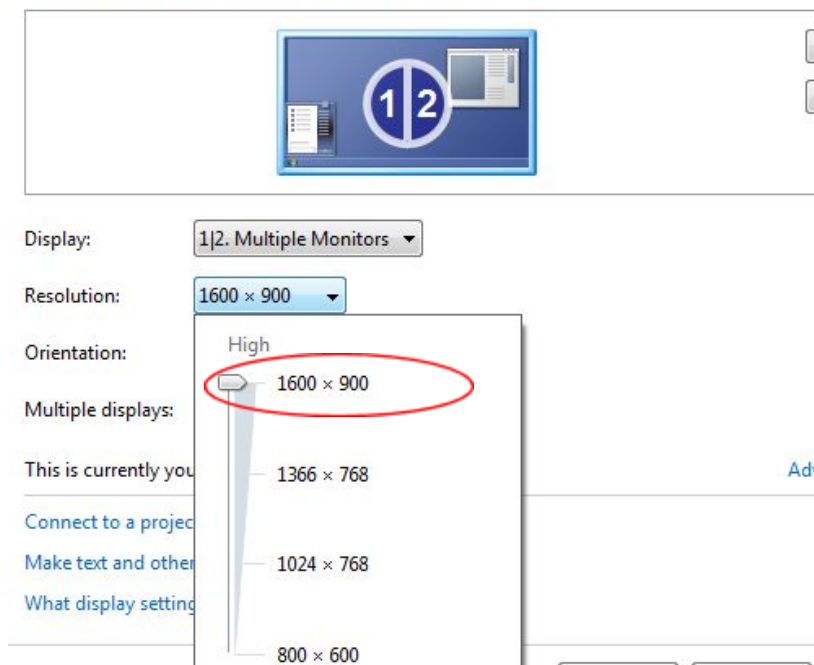

If you use the Display Port to VGA dongle to project to the projector, you may notice that when you plug it in and use it that the resolution of the laptop screen changes.

To change this back if you simply right click on the desktop, you will see this menu appear. You will want to choose Screen Resolution.

Once you choose that a menu like this will appear. You will want to change the resolution in the drop down menu from 1024X768 to 1600x900, then click OK. This will make everything look normal again.

Change the appearance of your display

Once this is done then you should not have to do this again.